conservation measures will ultimately benefit the entire county. Each farm pond, properly constructed dam, each sod waterway, and each acre properly planted and cared for, whether with row crops, hay, grain, or trees, will bring added dollars to farm conditions in Appomattox County.

4-H Achievement Record Workshop

4-H Members interested in entering State 4-H Achievement contests are invited to attend an Achievement Record Workshop on Saturday, January 19 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the county agent's office. Those attending should bring all of the 4-H materials they have collected including record books, letters, newsclippings, pictures, etc. In order to enter a state contest a 4-Her must have been 14 years old by January 1, 1963. Records due in the state office by April 1st.

"Out On A Limb"

Game warden for Appomattox County, Charles Torrence, says that for the first time in his four years as warden he had to climb a tree to check a hunting license. The hunter, as it turned out is the "bow and arrow" variety and evidently was looking for game from a higher perch than his "shoulan' iron" buddies in the Appomattox - Buckingham Forest area.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Outlook Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible Material: Mark 1:14-45.
Devotional Reading: Philippians 2:1-11.

Jesus Beginning

Lesson for January 13, 1963

Jesus of Nazareth always had grumblers or complainers in his audience. They could always find fault — though that was no discredit to him. God on high has many self-appointed critics, but he was never known to change his way on their account.

One can easily imagine what some of Jesus' listeners might have said when he began preaching his first sermons. Neither Matthew nor Mark gives us a whole sermon, only a sketch of his general line. The reader who will compare Matthew 3:2 with Matt. 4:17 can guess what the unfriendly listener might say: "There's nothing new here, I've heard this before." Word for word, the gist of what John preached is just what Jesus preached. The Master added something, but did not change the fact that — at first — what Jesus preached was so much like what John preached that you might be tempted to call it an echo.

Carrying On

Mark connects Jesus' beginning to preach with the arrest of John the Baptist. As long as John was preaching, Jesus remained in silence. When John's brave voice was shut into the dungeon of Herod's cruelty, then Jesus came into Galilee and preached. It should not surprise us that Jesus had a message so much like the same as John's. It was not that Jesus was an echo or that he had no mind of his own. Rather, he evidently felt that what John had proclaimed still needed saying. It was of the utmost importance that as many as possible should hear the news, should be faced with the demand. The Kingdom of God is at hand! Repent! Believe! This was no light matter. His mandate is dependent on whether people were ready for the Kingdom, whether their wills and purposes were attuned to God's.

Prayer and Planning

Jesus did not spend all his time preaching. When a woodsman has a hard day ahead of him, he does not rush out and start chopping. He spends some time in sharpening his axe.

So it was with Jesus. One of the first things we hear of his doing, was to call certain fishermen to be his followers. Some people think that the little scene by the lakeside, pictured in few words by Mark, was the whole story: Jesus just walked up to four total strangers and said, "Follow me." Other Bible students see this incident as part of a longer story, most of it untold, of gradual acquaintance, climaxing in this definite "call." However that may be, it is clear that Jesus was already planning ahead for the days when he would no longer be on this earth as he then was. To put it in one word, he was thinking ahead to the church. If the life of Jesus in Chapter One in the great story of Christianity, the rest of the chapters are the life and adventures of the Church, Jesus was already thinking into the distant future, when he began to choose his Twelve.

Before Everything Else

Mark first mentions Jesus' prayers after all the healings at Capernaum, after the calling of some of his disciples and the casting out of a demon in the synagogue. But it is likely that Jesus would have put off praying till then? Mark, the shortest of the Gospels, does not try to tell us everything — and neither did the other three gospel-writers. Luke tells us that Jesus was praying at the time of his baptism; and we may be sure that that was not the first time. Along with planning, ahead of planning, goes prayer. Knowing what we do about Jesus, we can be sure he did not just make his plans first and then ask his Father to approve. The best planning is that which takes God in — not as a postscript, a formal last minute unnecessary bit of religious courtesy. The best planning is that which consults with God first, makes the plan step by step with prayerful listening to hear God's whisper. If Jesus found it so important to pray that he would rise before dawn to find time for it, surely the ordinary Christian needs to pray even more. For prayer is not only telling God what we want — he knows that already. It is listening for him to tell us what He wants.

Pastor Says

Simeon Stylites, the ancient Syrian Pillar sitter, who was the world's original columnist, sat atop a 60 foot pillar for 60 years to prove he could be pious. Our columns he wrote for more than 60 years probably many of them were written from that vantage point.

To sit atop a 60 foot pillar to prove ones consecration may, by like many of our present - day "Know-hows". These "do-it-yourself" experts who bore society with their wares. They accomplish in one stroke of the pen, or from one sentence from their superior wisdom, what it takes us poor folk a lifetime to accomplish. They accomplish in one burst of wisdom what centuries has not yet accomplished. You had better watch these kind of people, even in the realm of religion.

This writer had a long-distance call from one of these "know hows" from our neighbors to the north — Canada. The caller was in the process of developing a great oil chain — right in the middle of a great Canadian lake, and I became one on the ground floor men in this "get rich quick" scheme. We grow tired of these bores—incidentally a bore is an opening in a gun barrel. They can tell us what's wrong with the world, and its solution with one gem from their reservoir of wisdom. Don't we wish life was that simple? Come to think of it, I don't believe I would. The joys of attainment would be absent.

With all of our "know - hows" we look upon Kitty Hawk with a smirk as if to say, did not all wisdom end with us? We forget that were it not for the Wright Brothers, we would not enjoy the privilege of flying like a bird. We have gone through the "pill era" and are now about to pass the summit of the "tranquilizing age". These "big bores" keep on duping the people. But they don't — answers except the twilight zone.

The thing that keeps life from becoming a big bore — here I go with a "know-how" — the face life daily in the framework of preaching. God is living sacrifice, which is your reasonable service". The great Paul who was and is one of the greatest Christians of all times, has given us a solution to the problem of living. It solved his own problems, and will solve ours. "A living sacrifice": makes it possible for us to adjust daily to life's needs and challenges without "pat answers". We like Paul may have to "beat and buffet," at times. We will walk in the shadows often, and in the valley of despair and slough frequently. But we will not be a "big bore" because we face life in the consciousness that "we can do all things through Christ who continues to strengthen us."

Sitting atop a pillar 60 feet high will prove nothing — except stupidity. Looking from the top of a mountain recently in Western N.C., I saw a part of the most beautiful terrain in these parts of the U.S. However, when with my friend, I left the top and came down into the valley I found many dry bones. Only those who sit atop of today's world, and refuse to look into the

Galilee Baptist Church Annual Church Meeting Held

The local Galilee Baptist Church held its annual church meeting last Saturday, Jan. 5, at 2:30 p.m. The pastor of the church presided. The financial report was given by the treasurer Mrs. C. D. Beasley. The report was given in detail and an itemized statement was given of all the finances taken in and every item purchased. The report was accepted with a vote of thanks. The following recommendations were adopted for the new year. To improve the church cemetery, to install new pews, to continue our support to Virginia Seminary. To organize a missionary circle. To continue our beautification program. To sponsor three financial drives, To add to our deacon board and our usher board.

An unusually large crowd attended the regular preaching services last Sunday at the Galilee Baptist Church. The pastor delivered a special sermon from the subject: "The Secret of a Good Start." All present enjoyed the message. The choir sang a rendered special music. The Lords Supper was administered at the close of the morning worship. The offering for the day was very good.

The regular meeting of the Appomattox County Ministers was held Monday evening at 3:30 p. m. in the school library. The president, Mr. E. T. Johnson presided. Membership cards were given out for the year. Plans were formulated for the February meeting which will be in the form of a workshop with M. J. Price delivered her annual New Year's message.

Mrs. H. R. Forster, science teacher in the Carver High School is sick in the Lynchburg General Hospital. She has been ill for the past three weeks. We hope for her a complete recovery. Mrs. Herbery Williams a recent graduate of Hampton Institute has been teaching in her place.

Coach Joseph Lewis has also been out on account of sickness. We are glad to know that he is improving.

Graveside funeral services were held last Friday at the Galilee Church cemetery for the two small children of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Goode who lost their lives in a fire of unknown origin last Wednesday morning around 10 a.m. Rev. R. Q. Lawing officiated. He was assisted by the Rev. James Franklin. West Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

News has been received here of the sudden death of Mr. Thomas Doss, of New York City He is the brother of Mrs Mary Tanner, of Spout Spring community. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at this reporting.

The public is invited to attend the regular preaching services at the Mount Shiloh Baptist this Sunday at the regular preaching hour.

NOTICE

Jessalyn Hancock Drinkard

The following resolution was adopted by the Stockholders and Board of Directors of The Farmer's National Bank of Appomattox, Virginia in their annual meeting on January 8, 1963.

Whereas, on Monday, July 2, 1962, God in His infinite wisdom, love and mercy saw fit to take from our midst our friend and Assistant - Cashier, Jessalyn Hancock Drinkard.

Therefore, be it resolved, that the members of this institution, in humble submission to God's will, pause and pay tribute to the memory of one of our most faithful members and co-workers.

"Miss Jac", as she was affectionately known to friends and fellow workers, was for over 39 years a faithful member of the staff of this bank. Her time and abilities were dedicated to the services of "Her Bank". Her kindness and graciousness were a blessing to all who knew her. We can always cherish the memory of the warmth of her smile.

The fundamentals of banking were realities to her and she will long be remembered for her honesty, humility, kindness and good judgement which she demonstrated in the conduct of business affairs.

That we are thankful for her life of service to her bank, her home, her church and community. As a young, and intellectually we share with her family a profound sense of loss and sorrow at the passing of our beloved co-worker. That we express our assurance of love for her family and all those who knew and loved her.

As a memorial to her, it is the will of this Board, that a copy of this Memorial be recorded in the minutes, a copy sent to the members of her family and that a copy be published in our local newspaper, the Times - Virginian.

T. DeWitt Evans,
Executive Vice-President.
